the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are employed in the public sector has increased by 1.5 million, from 2.5 million in 1980 to 4 million in 1995 (Department of Health 1996).

There is a growing emphasis on the need to improve the efficiency of the public sector, and to ensure that the public sector is able to deliver the services that are required by the public. This has led to a number of initiatives, including the introduction of competition, the restructuring of public sector organisations, and the introduction of performance measures. The aim of these initiatives is to ensure that the public sector is able to deliver the services that are required by the public, in a cost-effective and efficient manner.

One of the key initiatives in the public sector is the introduction of competition. This has led to a number of public sector organisations being privatised, and to a number of public sector organisations being required to compete for contracts. This has led to a number of public sector organisations being required to improve their efficiency, and to reduce their costs. This has led to a number of public sector organisations being required to improve their services, and to ensure that they are able to deliver the services that are required by the public.

Another key initiative in the public sector is the restructuring of public sector organisations. This has led to a number of public sector organisations being merged, and to a number of public sector organisations being required to improve their efficiency, and to reduce their costs. This has led to a number of public sector organisations being required to improve their services, and to ensure that they are able to deliver the services that are required by the public.

A third key initiative in the public sector is the introduction of performance measures. the 1990s, the number of people with a mental health problem has increased by 50% (Mental Health Foundation 1999). The prevalence of mental health problems has increased in the general population, and the incidence of mental health problems has increased in the prison population.

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the mental health needs of prisoners. The Department of Health (2000) has published a strategy for mental health services, which includes a commitment to improve the mental health of prisoners. Your mind is the only thing you alone possess.
What you do is a product of your thoughts and no one else's. If you want to drink, smoke, dress freaky, act crazy, help others or love someone, forget what others may say about you and be yourself. Your life depends on how you think, act and react,
so don't follow the crowd if you disagree with what they're saying.
You are your only judge;
it's up to you to do what you feel is right.

Dreams materialize as band and choir tour Europe

With ten months of weekly rehearsals, planning, and hectic last-minute preparation behind them, 104 band and choir members and chaperons landed at Amsterdam's Schephol Airport July 30, to begin a three-week concert tour of Europe. Traveling by bus, the group covered eleven countries presenting concerts and sight-seeing.

The band's proudest performance was at the nationally-televised World Festival of Music in Kerkrade, Holland, where they achieved second division honors. Band members sampled Dutch living while staying with resident host families in Grevensicht, Holland, during the Festival. Not only was the tour group warmly received at numerous receptions, but was praised for its musical skill and attitude toward its organization and country.

Red and white, clash, hat, teacher days spark enthusiasm for Homecoming '70

In advent of October 16, the Booster Club planned and executed the first football spirit week. Seniors captured the prize for having the greatest percentage of students participate in the crazy clothes class competition.

Thursday night, Bulldog fans huddled round the explosive bonfire, the last in CPHS history. The cheerleader-led, human-link snake dance then coiled around the square and back to the football field where onlookers watched the Seniors trounce the Juniors 39-12 in the Powderpuff football game.

The third annual Homecoming parade circled the square Friday evening before returning to the field for judging. The Senior float and FHA car bagged first place plaques. Despite the spirit boosting campaign, the Bulldogs fell to Highland 14-8 in the game that followed. Afterwards, Queen Joyce Wilshire and Mr. Football Norm Hicks reigned over "Moonshine", the Homecoming dance.

With high hopes for the following game, Sue Graves and Joey Kremer hold the hoop for the Bulldogs.

'On Borrowed Time' illustrates that death is necessary for life

This year's student-faculty play was a fantasy evolving around a salty old grandfather, his slightly senile wife, and their orphaned grandson, Pud. Death appears in the form of Mr. Brink who is visible only to those he is going to take. After grandma dies, Gramps traps Mr. Brink in his enchanted apple tree and all dying on earth stops. It takes the suffering of Pud to make Gramps realize that death is vital to make room for others to live.

In contrast to last year's almost all-faculty cast, Miss Drucilla Stillwagon, director, chose students for all leads in Paul Osborn's "On Borrowed Time." Backstage, teachers and students worked in equal numbers on sets, costumes and make-up.

To prove to the doctor (Scott Falk) that all death on earth has stopped, Gramps (Bob Nolan) inflicts Mr. Grimes (Mr. Craig Myers) with a normally fatal wound.

Right—Granny (Noel Guenette) continually nags Gramps (Bob Nolan) about his constant swearing.

Left—Realizing her time on earth is up, Granny (Kim Chubbs) allows Death to take her to heaven to the dismay of her maid, Marcy (Diana Han).

Questioning the value of life, Mr. Brink (Drew Hammitt), who symbolizes Death, tries to lure Gramps' grandson, Pud, up into the enchanted apple tree.

Weeks of planning pay off as juniors win hall competition

Covering every square inch of wall space, "The Greatest Show on Earth" depicted basketball players and would-be sectional opponents as creatures from a circus. As did seniors and sophomores, spirit-minded juniors spent the weekend before sectionals painting signs and hanging streamers. At the mid-week pep session, faculty members appeared as cheerleaders and basketball players. The Booster Club-sponsored Basketball Bounce featured Mr. Basketball Jim Liss and his queen, Rosemarie Fathke.

Spirit-rousing efforts were not in vain as loyal fans cheered the Bulldogs to their third sectional crown at the Calumet Sectional. Falling to Gary West Side the following weekend, the team was knocked out of regional play.

CPHS appraises policies, curriculum with evaluations

As a member of the North Central Association, CPHS is required to undergo an evaluation by outsiders every seven years. This October, a committee of 13 educators analyzed the results of the detailed self-study which was made last year to determine whether its conclusions are accurate, whether the school system's programs coincide with its objectives, and whether the school fills the needs of the community. The committee's findings are currently being studied to determine where and how the school's workings need to be corrected and updated.

With questionnaires and interviews, the Northwest Study Council evaluated CPHS's curriculum. All staff members underwent a review by administrators from within the school system. A student exchange with Lowell High School provided a comparison of the traditional and modular scheduling systems.

After a hurried lunch in the cafeteria, students donned wrinkled gym clothes to work out in the gym. Soccer was the most popular sport with the Bay Area Bombers and Fantastic Freaks the top teams. Fifth hour seniors outnumbered fourth hour juniors for the crab soccer title. Amateur athletes challenged their strength and endurance in basketball, volleyball, bowling, softball, and track competition.

Streamers, gazebo set atmosphere for romantic prom night

After home pictures and pre-prom parties, over 300 students and guests converged on Salvatorian Father's Hall for "Love Is Blue." Girls with stiff hairdos and guys in rented tuxedos dance to music by the Moon-glow, had souvenir pictures taken, and munched on refreshments served by sophomores.

All in attendance approved the selection of Sue Sneden and Chuck Blanchard for queen and king. The royal couple led the grand march around the room, after which everyone headed for dinner at various restaurants.

Rain and cold weather drove most prom-goers out of the area the next day. Turkey Run overflowed with students hiking on trails, playing football and eating picnic lunches. Chicago attracted its share of sleepy, but raring-to-go couples.

A new life begins for CPHS seniors after commencement

For the first time in at least 16 years, seniors did not get a class picture taken; they also faced the problem of not receiving diplomas on time. Last-minute arrival, however, made it possible for them to go through commencement in the traditional manner.

Musical selections from the movie "Love Story" were played by the CPHS band and Tim Foley, former Purdue football player and current defensive halfback for the Miami Dolphins, gave the commencement address. His entertaining and inspiring speech made the stifling gymnasium more bearable for the red and white gowned graduates and their relatives.

Hypnotism, stock exchange, trials, strikes intrigue seniors in social science classes

As a labor-management exercise, the social studies and industrial education departments formed the Universal Widgacus Corporation. 200 widgets and 100 abacuses were planned, managed and sold by economic students as the shop students labored over the toys. Science students find experiments essential in problem-solving

In biology, students staged a "Cook-in," where twenty pounds of mushrooms were boiled and fried in Crisco oil. Classes were shown the fire-department's "Resusci-ani," a life-like dummy used in training students on how to save drowning victims. Included in the studies were the usual dissections of formaldehyde creatures and the investigation of the ten systems. At Christmas time students worked with the Biology Club collecting food for the needy.

Artists mold scenes, individual projects; actors write scripts

Trying to create a Victorian atmosphere, art students designed and constructed life-size figures which were later displayed in area grade schools. Each student was required to enter the annual student art show in three dimensional, drawing, crafts, or painting. Charts and plaques were made in a combination art and history project. Crafts classes made rugs and posters, tie-dyed items, and macramé belts and purses.

Drama students studied make-up and special effects. Various facets of the stage including voice control, choreography, and lighting were demonstrated by a professional. Students also helped with the student-faculty play, "On Borrowed Time," and a children's play, "The Tomboy and the Dragon."

Consumer education offers wider choice of related courses

With the culmination of a one-year pilot program in consumer education, future home economics students found that they would be able to take any course offered in that field after successful completion of the foundation courses at the freshman level.

The home furnishing class fashioned an array of candles, macrame, textured plaques, yarn Christmas trees and tie-dyed belts. Floor plans for their dream houses were also completed.

Groups contemplate problems of drugs; novice drivers panic

Thoroughly studying drugs, health students discussed and clarified many misconceptions on the controversial subject. In addition, they studied anatomy, talked about sex, and demonstrated first aid techniques.

Introduced to the fundamentals of the car, drivers' education students learned to change a tire, charge a battery, and check the oil and water. To test what they learned in class, they took to the open road, facing all kinds of traffic situations.

Advanced girls' physical education classes went cycling and took picnic lunches while the advanced boys' classes played soccer and knee football.

Personal grooming hints on hair, makeup, diet, and exercise were discussed in girls' classes while the boys spent time in circuit training, rope climbing, and weight lifting. Field trips to local establishments were taken for instruction on bowling and pool.

Together the classes were introduced to various types of music and dance steps and participated in mixed volleyball. All classes tried out for the President's All-American Team which included sit ups, shuttle runs, and standing long jumps.

Volunteers for Handicapped Children aided teachers at the First Presbyterian Church and Eisenhower School every day. Each month the club planned an outing for the children such as Halloween, Christmas, and Easter parties, swimming in the Lowell pool, an open gym night, and a trip to the movies. Inexperienced staff labors to publish thirty newspapers Room 212A echoed with pecking typewriters and rustling papers as journalism students put out the Inklings this year. After school on Wednesday while the newspaper staffers readied stories for the week's edition, Editor Nancy Bailey checked over already completed copy. With the biggest part of the job finished, the Inklings staff went to the Lake County Star office where the paper is printed to correct errors on the galley proofs.

The staff sold approximately 450 newspapers to CP students each week; in addition, papers were exchanged with schools throughout the state.

New columns like "It's A Man's World," and "Cheaters Never Lose" added variety to the paper, while students expressed their views through "Letters to the Editor."

Only one loss mars an otherwise perfect varsity tennis record

An outstanding 11-1 record was captured by the tennis team this year. The only loss was to Lafayette Jeff.

Crown Point tied for first place with Highland during sectionals but fell second behind Jefferson in regionals play. They also took first in singles and doubles at the Lake County Tennis Association Tourney.

Bob Shrader won first in sectionals, regionals, and second place in the state singles championship, in addition to being the L.C.T.A. singles champ. George Thalmann and Larry Kiefer were Lake County Tennis Association Doubles Champs.

Right—Building endurance, harriers Jim Kacmar, Craig Banser, and Tim Cunningham trot around the quarter-mile track.

Despite 6-6 season, harrier team places third in sectionals

The cross country team started on a weak note, but followed with middle season strength. Earning a final 6-6 record, the team made up for early season losses with five consecutive wins under Coach Bob Conard's second year of coaching.

In sectionals, Crown Point placed third in a field of twenty.

Adding to the total team effort, Juniors Craig Baner and Jim Kacmar were named to the Lake Suburban Conference team. Senior Gary Marshall captured first in the first annual Soap Bowl Mile with a 4:46 time.

Roundballers dump Griffith, Calumet to win third crown

The basketball team's end-season rallying balanced a poor start. The final post for the team, co-captained by Jim Liss and Tom Wornhoff, was 13-11.

The Bulldogs competed in the Lafayette Jeff Holiday Tourney for the first time, defeating state-ranked Rochester, realizing third place.

Chip Parsons, Chris Jacobsen, Liss, and Wornhoff were named all-sectional players. Jacobsen and Liss, who was also all-regional, were named to the all-conference team. Liss set a new school record with 1315 career points.

Breaking the elusive 100-point mark in the Lowell game and the 21-3 record of 1969 highlighted the 17 years as basketball coach for Harry Allison, who retired to become Athletic Director.

Carnahan concludes wrestling coach stint with 155-81-7 total

At the end of the wrestling season, the school staff and administration, friends and students honored Coach Carl Carnahan at a testimonial dinner for 26 years of service as athletic director, baseball and wrestling coach.

Only two of six returning lettermen were able to wrestle this season. Ineligibilities and injuries prevented other matmen from helping to improve the 1-12 season, the sole win being against Hanover Central.

Athletically-inclined females introduce track, gymnastics

The girls' gymnastics team had an increased turnout and a larger number of scheduled meets which offered members increased chance for competition. Coffeehouses and bakesales were money-making activities for scholarships and new uniforms.

Three girl gymnasts placed in district: Chris Poisel third in all-around, Debby Miller fourth in vaulting, and Jo Ellen Hall fifth in balance beam. Only Chris Poisel qualified for state and won sixth place in all-around.

Newly-organized was the girls' track team coached by Don Kyes and Diane Cassiday. Although the team started late, all events were offered for competition.

Placing second for the 100-yard dash event in the district meet, Pauline Troutwine went on to place fifth in regionals.

Starting slowly this season, the gymnastics team continually improved its performances, finally achieving the marginal record of 5-6 and third place in the state.

Team Captain Mike Tagg was invitational and sectional first-place winner on trampoline and in tumbling and placed first in state for tumbling. Gary Linder was the high point man for Crown Point and was sectional and invitational all-around winner. The team was fourth in the Concord Invitational and second in the sectionals.

Dim 9-11 season prevails from young inexperienced team

Fielding rather than hitting appeared a strong point for the baseball team. Only five seniors with seven returning lettermen played varsity with Coach Carl Carnahan and co-captains Kent Kahl and Rick Oliver.

Bidding for the sectionals with a 9-11 post, the moundsmen white-washed Kouts 10-0, but plagued with errors, they lost 5-2 to Lake Central.

The junior varsity team, paced by Ed Schiesser's .575 batting average, closed its season with a 9-3-1 mark.

Individual efforts not enough to make winning track year

Poor turnout coupled with ineligibilities hampered the track team. Field events and distance running, the team's strong points, could not counterbalance other deficits of the 3-10 season.

Individual records established were by Jim Kacmar, the only regional qualifier, in the mile and Craig Banser in the two-mile. Team captain Norm Hicks and Kacmar placed second in conference competition, with Jesse Yancy placing third and Banser and Terry Roberts fifth in their respective events.

Golf squad takes second in sectionals with 10-4 season

Beating Valparaiso by two strokes in a sudden death playoff, Crown Point qualified for regional competition.

Newly devised fall selection for the golf team resulted in fewer members but a better team. Of thirteen men who turned out nine were eligible. Variance in average scores typical of each player spurned a defeat from Merrillville by a lone tie on the fifth man's score.

Improving on last year's record of 8-8, the team ended this season with a 10-4 post during Coach Mac Ruby's second season as golf coach.

Juniors experience pre-prom headaches fashioning theme

Concentrating their efforts on presenting the seniors with a prom worth remembering, 457 juniors contributed their time and money towards attaining this goal. Funds were raised by collecting class dues and operating the junior concession stand at football games. Planning throughout the year, the Class of '72 selected theme, location, band and photographer for the May 1 event.

In the first annual Red and White Super Bowl, a contest between junior and sophomore football players, the juniors proved superior, winning 13-0. Junior girls weren't as lucky as they lost in the GAA Powderpuff football game 39-16.

73'ers outnumber all previous classes with 523 members

At the beginning of the school year, sophomores elected their class officers and Student Council representatives and began participating in school activities.

The newcomers shared in the excitement of their first Homecoming, securing second place with their "Bury 'Em" class float.

Challenged by the Iowa Tests of Educational Development, blank bewildered faces marked the sophomores as they tackled 5½ hours of tests covering all aspects of education.

The class officers picked a selection of three styles and the class voted as a whole on their class ring, with the girls receiving a charm with their order.

Unsung heroes labor behind the scenes making CP function

During study halls and after school the library was open for use by conscientious students. Books, supplies and game tickets were available in the bookstore from Mrs. Jackie Webb, who took over for transferring Mrs. Helen Anderson at the semester. To supplement daily classroom routines, teachers depended on the audio-visual department for movies, filmstrips and records.

With Mrs. Doris Sprout planning the menu, the cooks fixed 650 hot lunches five days a week. A staff of nine custodians provided around-the-clock maintenance of the buildings and grounds.

Dividing their time between the high school and grade schools, speech therapist Mr. Alan Young taught students proper speech while the nurse, Mrs. Rita McFadden, sent sick kids home and handled the school health insurance policies.

With new adviser, staff edits Excalibur from different office

Old yearbooks and filing cabinets were hauled to room 223 from 212-A as Excalibur and Inklings staffs parted company. The new adviser, Mrs. Jewelene Jordan, joined the corp of journalism-minded people who worked all year to record CPHS events.

The book's basic format was determined before the school year began when Nancy Horst and Mary Dofin attended the Ball State Yearbook Workshop. Ideas materialized as advertising layouts were revised and group shots were dropped from the organization section. Jiffy-pop, cookies, and Cokes kept staffers alive as they waded through pictures and copy sheets, sifting out usable material.

When the books were delivered, all the brain-wracking, cursing, and thoughts of giving up had faded away. Only tears of joy illustrated the ultimate satisfaction of having presented CPHS a book worthy of the name EXCALIBUR.

Only the janitors haunt the halls sweeping up litter and dirt from a day's use.

Marred with obscenities and math problems, the study hall desks survive year after year of student use and abuse.

Starting the weary trek home, Rose Fathke and Dave Bartz head for the muddy parking lot.

Thousands of people have graduated from CPHS.
They have all taken the same courses, sat in the same home rooms, cheered in the same gym for the same causes.
You are just one in a thousand passing through in the continuous stream of people following the normal course of education. Unless you deviate from this well-worn path, you will not be remembered by the faculty and staff who remain behind.
An outstanding achievement or an unfortunate incident will place you on the list of those who are remembered.
The type of name you want to leave behind is up to you.

generous—greedy—your life style—IT'S UP TO YOU

*There is no way to escape the inevitable.
Though you may not be able to choose the method of your undoing, you can choose what you do from now until that moment comes.
Parental, social, and environmental conditions may be influential in your life, but no one but yourself should be responsible for the consequences of your decisions.
Your life—IT'S UP TO YOU.*

the 1990s, the number of people with a mental health problem has increased by 50% (Mental Health Foundation 1999).

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the needs of people with mental health problems, and the importance of the role of the community in this. The community is seen as a key resource in the provision of mental health services, and it is important to ensure that the community is able to meet the needs of people with mental health problems.

The community is a complex and diverse entity, and it is important to understand the different needs of different groups within the community. This paper explores the needs of people with mental health problems, and the role of the community in meeting these needs.

The paper is organized as follows. First, we discuss the needs of people with mental health problems. Then, we discuss the role of the community in meeting these needs. Finally, we discuss the implications of this for policy and practice.

Needs of people with mental health problems

People with mental health problems have a range of needs, and these needs can change over time. The needs of people with mental health problems can be divided into three main categories: social, psychological and physical.

Social needs

People with mental health problems often experience social isolation and loneliness. They may have difficulty forming and maintaining relationships with others. They may also experience discrimination and stigma from others.

It is important to ensure that people with mental health problems have access to social support. This can be provided by family, friends, community groups and mental health services.

Psychological needs

People with mental health problems often experience psychological distress. They may have difficulty coping with their problems, and they may experience anxiety, depression and other psychological symptoms.

It is important to ensure that people with mental health problems have access to psychological support. This can be provided by mental health services, community groups and self-help resources.

Physical needs

People with mental health problems often experience physical health problems. They may have difficulty maintaining a healthy diet, exercising and getting enough sleep. They may also experience physical symptoms of their mental health problem, such as headaches and fatigue.

It is important to ensure that people with mental health problems have access to physical health services. This can be provided by general practitioners, community health centres and mental health services.
